i loved max. he may be a big name in hollywood but he's not too important to come back home to care for his mother. he's also going to use this time to see raine again and get to the bottom of what happened fifteen years ago. he had been deeply in love with her and they had made big plans to be together. when she ignored his calls and letters he had been devastated, but he's never forgotten her. i loved the way that she showed up at her house during the storm to make sure that she and her baby were okay. he didn't expect to get snowed in with her, but he had no trouble taking advantage of it. it was really fun to see the way he was rather out of his comfort zone at first. baby abby really scared him because he had no clue what to do with a baby, but he sucked it up and did whatever he could to help raine. it was fun to see him cope with the dirty diapers and the crying, and see how quickly he fell for her. i also loved the scenes with the chickens and goats - he was such a good sport about it. what i loved the most was max's persistence in getting raine to tell him what had happened. i wasn't at all surprised by the revelation. once they had that straightened out, things really heated up between them. max realized he was falling for raine all over again, but couldn't figure out how to fit their lives together. it really looked like he was going to walk away again before he figured out what was really important.

raine has made a good life for herself since max left. she never understood why he didn't follow through on his promises to send for her, but she has moved on. when she shows up back in town she is determined not to reopen the pain of the past, especially since she has a secret that she doesn't want to tell him. i really liked the way that she took control of her life, even though her parents are still trying to run things their way. she is completely confident in her choice of what makes her happy. i also loved the way that she is adopting her cousin's baby girl. she really wants to be a mother and baby abby has brought a whole new dimension to her life. i enjoyed the realism of her life with the baby, from the lack of sleep to trying to work her life around the baby's schedule. she's not really happy when max ends up getting snowed in with her, because she's not sure that she can resist him. when he starts to fit in to her life so easily she knows she's in trouble. she was devastated when she found out just what had kept them apart all those years ago, but it did open her up to letting max back into her life. she was really worried about protecting her heart because she knew that he would have to go back to california and her life is in lenox. she can't see any way of things working out for them.

one of the other things i really enjoyed about the book was seeing how max's love gave raine the courage to confront her parents about what they had done all those years ago. they were a real piece of work. i also loved seeing max get in his own licks against them at the end - it was so satisfying! ...more flag 6 likes · like · see review view 1 comment dec 12, 2013 desere rated it it was amazing · review of another edition being trapped with a sexy billionaire is not something that happens to a lot of woman but yes it is indeed something a lot of woman dream about!

it's an excellent story fraught with heartache and grief and a set of parents intent on making their daughter live the life they want her to have for their own gain and at any cost. it is truly horrific. the parents are the worse book parents i have ever run across and it hurt my heart for what they did to this couple. i actually felt a deep grief for what they went through, for how devastating it would have been in a real-life scenario.

another great book ms bennett. i highly recommend this!

raine is a beautiful, young woman who has been heartbroken in more ways than one, but is still hanging on. she is finally about to get the one this her heart wants most, a child. the adoption has been filled and processed, so she is only waiting for the judge to sign off on it. her finances her stretched, but that's nothing unusual. when her car hits black ice and lands in a ditch it's the last thing she needs. when another driver stops to assist her, she soon realizes that things can go from bad to worse in the blink of an eye. her heart almost stops when max steps out of his vehicle, suddenly those feelings she had buried years ago bubbled to the surface. this is not what she needs happening right now. max, one of the hottest, successful bachelors in la, was the one she never forgot, not the love or the hurt. he was suppose to send for her when he got settled, but she hadn't heard from him since he left over 10 years ago. deciding she wouldn't discuss the past was how she would handle dealing with max, but he had other plans.

when he showed up at her farmhouse under the pretense of making sure she was alright and not in need of anything. the last thing either expected was with all the snow coming down and the roads being shut down that he would get snowbound at her house. raine tried to keep her emotions from showing. max suddenly see the beautiful woman he fell in love with years ago, but also the wonderful woman and mother she has become. suddenly the years melted away and it was like they had never been apart. raine still refuses to discuss the past, because she knows some secrets can never be revealed. the problem with secrets is if others know then they have a way of coming to the surface. is this another storm to weather together or will raine find herself alone yet again?

raine is working hard trying to keep afloat with bills and her baby after her parents more or less cut her off. she does not need max to start stirring up old feelings. after he left her behind what does he really want with her?

max is wondering why raine cut him out of her life. he wants answers to be able to close that chapter of his life.

will they each find out the answers to what happened years ago? will they even be happy with the answers that if they do find out? will they be able to move forward with a relationship or are they just fooling each other? is it time to let go and finally move on to something new?
